The fifth child of Johann Sebastian, Carl Philipp Emanuel was another of the illustrious and industrious Bachs. A composer whose works bridge the divide between the baroque and classical periods. He was a revered keyboard player and his works and essays are known to have had influence upon renowned composers such as Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven.

The violin sonata in G minor is a work of three movements for violin and harpsichord, thought to have been composed in 1734. The middle movement, Adagio, is as gentle as a babbling brook. Let yourself unwind as the graceful vibraphone harmonies effortlessly meander beneath the gliding flute melodies.
